In the face of Electra Palace Athens, the aristocratic past of the city comes together with its exciting present and future in a timeless interpretation of luxury.

Its advantageous location at the heart of the famous Plaka district provides visitors with privileged access to prime landmarks and the bustling life of the city center -while offering splendid isolation in the arms of sweet indulgence.

The hotel's unique position is indeed the first thing that strikes the visitor for a reason. The visual contact with the Acropolis hill and the layers of history that color the area. All major historical landmarks being within walking distance (so that you can forget transportation). The present and future of the city unfolding at one's feet as dozens of dining, shopping and leisure options tell their own story and compete for your attention and time. For visitors who want to discover in one go the best that Athens has to offer, this is most definitely the spot to start the journey.

The hotel itself is a fine example of an idiosyncratic local architecture that incorporates eclectic classical elements. Stately and impressive but never loud, it blends elegantly with the historical buildings that surround it to create a fascinating whole. Only a look is enough to be automatically transferred to a long-gone era, when things had a different meaning and flavor. This is aristocratic Athens at its finest, opening up to you in the most welcoming of ways.

You can immediately feel the elegance and sophistication, alongside the warmth and the hospitable vibes that every little detail exudes. The hotel's refined proposition of luxury has a uniquely Greek vibe to it, shunning flamboyance and placing importance on what truly matters. Discover an advanced take on indulgence with custom-made furniture, a point of discovery in its own right, marble-tiled bathrooms and small, calculated design touches that make all the difference.

At the same time, never lose sight of today and its benefits with the most contemporary amenities such as free Wi-Fi internet connection, laptop size electronic safes and fully equipped bathrooms with hair dryer, bathrobes & slippers, magnifying mirror and more. Not to miss: our enchanting internal garden, a destination and an experience worth savoring in its own right.

We first anchor in Blue Lagoon superb turquoise waters and for the coming hours we circumnavigate South Antiparos, sneak in the Caves and anchor at Despotiko Beaches for swimming. To fulfill the appetite that sea brings in the right time we prepare and serve our delicious full lunch on deck being the complement of a unique experience followed by special desert. Wherever wind is on our side we hoist again our sails, to experience the unique feeling of wind filling up the sails. Follow us and explore the oldest city of Europe and the first organized human civilization. Discover the greatness of the ancient Minoans and walk around the old stone-paths of Knossos, the cradle of Minoan civilization.

The palace of Knossos, the centre of Minoan civilization, was constituted the main force of the island’s population during the Bronze Age. Their civilization as well as the palace was destroyed at the explosion of the Santorini Volcano. The excavation conducted by Arthur Evans 1900-1913 and 1922-1930 brought to light the grand palace of Knossos, along with other great findings of immense importance concerning the culture and the life of the Minoans, which are as of yet kept at the archaeological museum of Heraklion.

The most important monuments of the site are:

The Palace of Knossos. It is the largest of the preserved Minoan palatial centres. Four wings are arranged around a central courtyard, containing the royal quarters, workshops, shrines, storerooms, repositories, the throne room and banquet halls. Dated to 2000-1350 B.C.

The Little Palace. It lies to the west of the main palace and has all the features of palatial architecture: scraped wall masonry, reception rooms, a pristyle hall, a double megaron with polythyra (pi er-and-door partitions) and a lustral basin-shrine. Dated to the 17th-15th centuries B.C.

The Royal Villa. It lies to the NE of the palace and its architectural form is distinguished by the polythyra, the pillar crypt and the double staircase, with two flights of stairs. It is strongly religious in character and might have been the residence of an aristocrat or a high priest. Dated to the 14th century B.C.

House of the Frescoes. It is located to the NW of the palace and is a small urban mansion with rich decoration on the walls. Dated to the 15th, 14th-12th centuries B.C.

Caravanserai. It lies to the south of the palace and was interpreted as a reception hall and hospice. Some of the rooms are equipped with baths and decorated with wall paintings.

The “Unexplored Mansion”. Private building, probably of private-industrial function, to the NW of the palace. It is rectangular, with a central, four-pillared hall, corridors, storerooms and remains of a staircase. Dated to the 14th-12th centuries B.C.

Temple Tomb. It is located almost 600 m. to the south of the palace and was connected with the “House of the High Priest” by means of a paved street. It seems that one of the last kings of Knossos (17th-14th centuries B.C.) was buried here. Typical features of its architecture are the hypostyle, two-pillar crypt, the entrance with the courtyard, the portico and a small anteroom.

House of the High Priest. It lies 300 m. to the south of Caravanserai and contains a stone altar with two columns, framed by the bases of double axes.

The South Mansion. Private civic house, located to the south of the palace. It is a three-stored building with a lustral basin and a hypostyle crypt, dating from the 17th-15th centuries B.C.

Villa of Dionysos. Private, peristyle house of the Roman period. It is decorated with splendid mosaics by Apollinarius, depicting Dionysos. The house contains special rooms employed for the Dionysiac cult. Dated to the 2nd century A.D

History of the Farmhouse

Our Farmhouse has always been our family's dream as we have always wanted to have our very own place to host family events and receive friends around a big table for delicious meals and endless debates. Just recently this dream came to life. The 19th century stone-built house of the priest (see our great-grandfather) that stood half-ruined for 40 years now in the small village of our forefathers, in the rural heart of Crete, came back to life after hundreds of hours of hard work. On a beautiful piece of land full of olive trees, herbs, vines and fruit trees, in a corner of Crete completely unknown 362 days a year and the center of attention from the 16th to the 18th of July when the village attracts a staggering 100.000 pilgrims for the religious festival of Santa Marina (the rest of the year you will not find more than 200-300 people living here) an ideal microclimate allows us to cultivate almost all kinds of Cretan nature's fruits, herbs and vegetables. We keep mechanical methods to a minimum and use natural farming practices enriching the land with manure and avoiding completely the use of chemical pesticides. With the land's microclimate supporting our efforts, we manage to fill our table on a daily basis from early spring till late autumn with fruits and veggies we produce ourselves. During the winter when we focus on the olive harvest we supply our table with organic, exclusively, produce, from friends-farmers in the area.

Our Philosophy

Using only high quality raw materials, organic and seasonal ingredients, we aim to highlight the special features of Crete's amazingly diverse cuisine and exquisite local products and offer to our guests an experience of authentic, generous philoxenia, the way this country has been doing it, since Homer's time. Colors, scents and flavors complement one another throughout the seasons and this is what we want to share with you. Cold pressed extra virgin olive oil from our trees on home-made bread we bake in our wood-oven, white crispy Assyrtiko from the small vineyard we planted a decade ago and premium reds from a friend's impressive cellar, strong raki we distill in November in all-night long intoxicating distilling sessions, fresh soft goat cheese, "horta"-greens from the surrounding hills, fragrant herbs all year round, seasonal vegetables and fruits full of flavor, eggs from our chickens, free range lamb and goat from the local shepherd just 3 minutes away and delicious snails our land generously offers, are just a few of nature's gifts that fill our table.

Lunch or Dinner

When the weather is favorable we serve our meals outdoors in a lush with trees, vines and herbs environment. The menu is designed to satisfy any palate and typically includes fresh seasonal salads, home-made bread, fresh soft goat cheese and strong aged cheeses, 2-3 vegetarian/vegan dishes and at least one of the most iconic meat dishes of the island. Depending on guest preferences we offer "kapriko"-boar slow-cooked in the wood-oven to perfection, onwards to rest on citrus leaves that offer to this dish its' distinctive flavor or "antikristo" lamb or goat, slow roasting on long skewers against the fire for hours, the way Homer describes it in the Iliad. When the weather is not so accommodating, we host our friends in the main hall of the ambient farmhouse by the fireplace. Seasonality is key we use exclusively seasonal organic ingredients (either from our property if they are ready to pick, or from friends' certified farmers of organic produce that supply us) therefore the menu changes every few weeks/months. Meat and fish dishes may be prepared year-round. The local shepherd just 3 minutes away from the farmhouse supplies us with the best quality of lamb, goat and boar and we have a very good friend who owns a caique and delivers excellent fish upon request.

A typical meal includes a variety of traditional and iconic dishes.
